

Exhibitions (<https://news.artnet.com/exhibitions>)

From Baselitz to Burning Man: 28 Can't-Miss Museum Shows to See in the United States This Spring

From New York to Los Angeles, these are the art exhibitions that everyone will be talking about this coming season.

Caroline Goldstein (<https://news.artnet.com/about/caroline-goldstein-596>) & Sarah Cascone (<https://news.artnet.com/about/sarah-cascone-25>), April 11, 2018

Anila Quayyum Agha's Intersections (2013) will be in the North Carolina Museum of Art's "You Are Here: Light, Color, and Sound Experiences." Courtesy of the artist. Image © 2013 Rice Gallery, photo: Nash Baker.

To celebrate the beginning of a spring that never seems to arrive, museums across the country are simply blooming with new programs to entice art-goers. From the never-before-seen sculptures of the late Jack Whitten (<http://www.artnet.com/artists/jack-whitten/>), in Baltimore to paintings fresh from the studio, here are the shows you don't want to miss out on.

1. "No Spectators: The Art of Burning Man (<https://americanart.si.edu/exhibitions/burning-man>)"

Smithsonian American Art Museum
March 30, 2018–January 21, 2019